A Little Episode.

After the President of the Chicago convention had taken his seat, and everything was ready for the transaction of business, Mr. Judd of Illinois, arose and presented to the president a beautifully wrought oak garden, finished and ornamented with ivory and silver. The oak was a piece taken from Commodore Perry's flag ship, the Lawrence.

In making the presentation, Mr. Judd said:

It is not from its size that its power is to be estimated. It is like the republican rule, strong but not noisy. (Great enthusiasm.) It is not that the republicans require a noisy and violent government, or that they require riotously to put down the sham democracy; but they require, and intend to apply to them and to all persons who seek disunionism keep up a cry about destroying our government, the little force necessary to control and restrain them, like the little force which it will be necessary for you, Mr. President, to use in presiding over the deliberations of this convention. (Great cheer.)

There is a motto, too, which should be a motto for every republican in this convention—the motto borne upon the flag of the gallant Lawrence, "don't give up the ship." (Great applause.) Mr. President, in presenting this to you, in addition to the motto furnished by the mechanic who manufactured this as an evidence of his warmth and zeal in the republican cause, I would recommend to the person who will be nominated here at the election is over in November, send a dispatch to Washington in the language of the gallant Perry, "we have met the enemy, and they are ours." (Tearful cheering. Voices, "name, name.") Mr. President, in the beginning I should have named Mr. C. G. Thomas of Chicago. (Heartily applause.)

The President.—In behalf of the convention I accept from the hands of the gentleman from Illinois the present of the Chicago mechanic, and I have only to say to-day that all the auguries are that we shall meet the enemy, and they shall be ours. (Loud cheers.)

LIBERALITY OF THE DELEGATES.—$1,000,000 LEFT IN CHICAGO.—The Chicago Democrat says: "The amount of money left in our city by the delegates and the other strangers now here will be very large.—There are probably 100,000 strangers now in Chicago, and if each one only leaves ten dollars behind him, the result will be a deposit of one million. Many country merchants have put off their usual spring purchases until now, and our wholesale merchants are doing a very heavy trade."

We continue to receive accounts from all parts of the country of the enthusiastic reception of the nomination of Lincoln and Hamlin. It takes as well in the east as in the west.

The house on the 21st, took up the homestead bill as amended by the senate, and substituted therefor the original house bill by 104 against 59. So the subject will again go to the senate.

During the third ballot, and after it was known that Mr. Lincoln had secured the requisite number of votes, each state, California leading off, began to change its vote for Lincoln. The excitement was at its highest pitch. Every state had now changed its vote for Mr. Lincoln except the Empire state—whose delegation had been remarkably quiet and self-possessed up to this time.

This is a mistake. Neither Wisconsin nor Michigan changed their votes at that time. Of course, when a motion was made to make the nomination unanimous, all the delegates in the convention voted for it.

AN EDITORIAL ROW.—The La Crosse Union and Democrat is edited by Messrs. Swineford and "Brick" Pomroy. The former is for Buchanan, the latter for Douglas. The former was in Milwaukee the other day, when "Brick" pitched in strong for "Little Dog." Swineford returned to La Crosse and apologized to his readers for the articles. Next day they both published articles, each saying the other would not back down, and each writing for his own democratic candidate. In the meantime, Dr. Blakesley, a former editor of the Union, publishes a prospectus, proposing to issue another paper under the title of National Democrat. Things appear to be somewhat "complicated" among the democratic editors at La Crosse.

Dates from Denver City to the 15th inst., have been received. Rich gulch mines have been discovered at the head waters of Blue river, containing lumps of gold varying in value from $1 to $17. It is estimated that 5,000 people have arrived via the Platte route.

A distressing drouth still prevails in Kansas from the Missouri river to the Rocky mountains. But very little rain has fallen for nearly three months, and fears are entertained of a total failure of all the crops.

A new campaign paper has been started at Chicago called the "Rail Splitter."

RAREY'S WHEREABOUTS.—Mr. Rarey has returned to England after an absence of some thirteen weeks in Italy and the east. His time was principally occupied by his travels in the desert among the Arabs, whose horse handling peculiarities he wished to observe. It is, we believe, his wish to complete his cavalry contract, and give fifty more public exhibitions to the United Kingdom, and then leave for America in the summer.

The foreign ministers at Washington treat the Japanese embassy with marked indifference because the United States received the first compliment of a visit.

BETTER NOT.—A southern boy offers to fight the Benicia Boy for the sum of $10,000 dollars.

DARING ROBBERY.—A bold robbery was committed in New York city the other evening. A man broke a pane of glass in the front window of a gold pen store in Broadway, and seizing a rich specimen of gold bearing quartz on exhibition, worth about $500, escaped with a confederate in a wagon.

Plecomint was married on the 22d of March, and it is said will visit Boston with her husband next fall.

The revolt in the island of Sicily has not been put down, but was extending at the latest accounts.

The Japanese Embassy.

The Japanese made their visit to the president on the 17th in great state. The scene at Willard's was quite interesting, the whole street being crowded with spectators. At the preparations had been completed, the Chief Ambassador, accompanied by Captain Dupont, made his appearance, dressed in the most imposing manner, when he was instantly surrounded by his officers, who guarded him to the open carriage, in which he took a seat, the servants of the expedition kneeling while he passed them. His body guard immediately placed themselves on each side and behind the coach, positions which they held during the subsequent march to the president's house, and the coach moved forward to give place to that of the second ambassador. The appearance of the prince at the door was the signal for the military, who, at the word of command, shouldered arms, and the band played a national air. The second ambassador then appeared, followed by the suite, and similar ceremonies were observed as in the case of the principal, were gone through with for the second, and so with all those whose frank invited them to seats in the coaches. Each coach as it received its distinguished occupants was guarded by a body guard of Japanese, one of whom bore at his side a banner or staff, according to the rank of his master, the others wearing two swords each. When the embassy had all taken places in the coaches, the order was given to march, and the military, keeping their position and extending the entire length of the procession on either side, came to a front pace and marched in close order, entirely forestalling the possibility of any such intrusive manifestations as were to be expected on the occasion of the march to the White House. The procession moved up the Avenue, the band playing a lively air, followed by thousands of persons on every hand. The scene as the procession passed the United States Treasury was exceedingly imposing. The balconies in front of the Treasury building were crowded with brilliantly dressed ladies, with their male escorts. The widows and house tops on the street were completely covered with spectators. While the visitors advanced, looking neither to the right nor the left, and perfectly regardless of and indifferent to the crowd.

When the procession reached the president's house, the gates were flung open, and as soon as they passed through, were instantly closed, the crowd being entirely precluded from entering during the ceremonies which were to follow upon their introduction to the chief of the nation. Large numbers of the crowd, however, were before the appointed hour filled with the east room was vacant and now in Washington, the most part attended by fair and elegantly attired ladies, who composed half of the spectators of the procession. Present among them were nearly all the members of congress, many foreign ministers, and between eighty and ninety United States army and navy officers, Lieut. General Scott at the head of the former, and Commodore Shubrick at the head of the latter. All in their rich uniforms. A few moments before twelve the great doors of the mansion swung open, and the secretary of state, Mr. Seward, followed by the treasury, Mr. Chase, and the war, Mr. Cameron, and took a position at the east end of the opening made for the due performance of the ceremony.

At the very instant the clock struck 12 M., the great double doors of the east room swung noiselessly on their hinges, and those in view of it caught their first glimpse of the Japanese embassy. There were three ambassadors on a line in the center. On their right hand stood the secretary of state, who had retired to a room near them in their entrance, and behind him stood the American government's interpreter, Mr. Portman; and behind the right hand Japanese commissioner stood the chief Japanese interpreter to the embassy. Some distance in the rear of the embassy stood one of their high officers, probably the chief censor. On their left hand stood Capt. Dupont, the chief of the naval American commission having the embassy in charge here. The right hand commissioner bore a gorgeous box, and they were all dressed in flowing broadsides of the same material, and brown. On their heads they wore caps or ornaments of head work, resembling not a little the Moroccan traveling bags of women now the fashionable appendages of American ladies' arms. These were kept in place by a flat silk cord extending down under the chin. Each ambassador and the censor wore two Japanese swords.

In a half minute after the opening of the doors the embassy gravely, solemnly, and slowly approached the position of the President and Cabinet every one present being breathlessly still. They stopped twice in their approach, bowing low each time, and the President each time himself bowing simultaneously to them. On reaching his position, the ambassador on the right hand read in Japanese an appropriate address, to which the President nearly responded.

At the conclusion of the reading the President handed to him the copy of his address, and took each of them cordially by the hand. A reply was next made in their behalf by the right hand ambassador, through their interpreter and Mr. Portman, and again all, including the President, bowed low. The embassy were then one by one introduced to the ambassadors, the President, through an interpreter, previously announcing the official position of each as he was presented to them. Lieut. Gen. Scott was next in turn introduced to them, and then Speaker Pennington. Then four of the embassy's chief officers entered bowing low twice as they advanced and took positions behind their chief. They did not, however, shake hands with their chief, but merely allowing any but their chief officials to participate in that familiarity with so high a functionary as the chief ruler of a great nation.

Here the ceremony ended, the embassy and their attendants retiring from the apartment, walking backwards while in the presence of the President, and bowing low as before. —Cincinnati Gazette.

Sympathy for the Exiles.—On motion of Mr. Giddings, of Ohio, the National Republican Convention unanimously adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with those individuals who have been driven, some from their native states, and some from the homes of their adoption, for their opinions; and that we hold the democratic party is responsible for this gross violation of that clause of the constitution which guarantees to the citizens of each state the rights and privileges of citizens of all the states.

DEATH FROM EATING EGGS.—We have just learned of a death from this cause, which furnishes one of the most extraordinary instances of reckless gluttony we ever heard of. A man named Brand, of Shanksville, Somerset county, ate twenty-one boiled eggs at one meal. His digestive organs were unable to do so, and he died of a violent attack. The victim was a man of about 40 years of age, and was a native of the county. He was a member of the local militia, and was known for his gluttony. He was found dead in his bed, and the cause of death was ascertained by a medical examination. The incident is a warning to all who indulge in excessive eating.

How OLD ARE RECEIVED THE NEWS.—When the news of the nomination was received in Springfield, Mr. Lincoln was in the State Journal office. A boy came headlong into the room where he was sitting, with a sealed dispatch, which he placed in his hand. Mr. Lincoln opened and a sudden paler came over his features. He gazed upon it intently. His countenance brightened, and he turned and returned to his desk. "Well, boys, there is a little news for you, on our house who is interested in this business," and he walked away without any further appearance of agitation, to inform Mrs. Lincoln of the joyful news. —Chicago Tribune.

IMPORTANT FROM JAPAN.—From a private letter from Japan, dated Hakodadi, January 12th, 1860, written by an American in business in that city, we hear of an incident which may lead to results of importance. The Americans have been highly pleased and honored by the natives for their highly and honest manner of conducting business. Our information, per letter forwarded via Shanghai, gives an account of the shooting of a native by an American, the first instance of the kind which ever occurred in Japan.

The incidents are these: A Mr. Smith, an American merchant, doing business at Hakodadi, recently caught one of the natives in the act of robbing his house. Mr. Smith discharged his pistol at the intruder, and thinks he wounded him, but the robber, dropping some money he had obtained, took to flight. Mr. Smith pursued him, and fired a time or two, running about three hundred yards, until the man fell, pierced with five balls. He lived only about one hour. Mr. Smith was arrested, tried by the American consul, and acquitted. The Russian and English consuls, the governor, vice governor, two interpreters, and several of the lower grades of natives, were present at the trial, and did not appear to be satisfied with the decision. The affair was settled too quickly to suit them, and the first instance of the kind that has occurred in Japan, it has excited considerable interest among the foreigners in that country. —New York Post.

THE OTTOMAN MURDERER.—A LITTLE SNAKE PRACTICE.—Last Saturday night a young gentleman, named Robert, stopping at the Pacific House, was relieved of $1,000, containing about $150. The officers were put upon the track, and on Monday last, C. P. Smith, city marshal, assisted by the sheriff of this county, succeeded in tracing the supposed thief to Omaha City. They caused his arrest there, and had him committed to jail, to await a requisition from the governor of Iowa. Subsequent investigation led our city marshal to believe the individual thus arrested to be no other than "Lant McCormick," the murderer of Laura J. Harvey, of whom a reward of $1,000 is offered. Some of the Nebraska officials, becoming possessed of a suspicion, at about the same time, that this was the Ottoman murderer, with an eye to securing the reward, undertook to play off a sharp trick on our city marshal. They took the prisoner from the jail on Thursday last, placed him in a carriage, and, passing down the river on the Nebraska side, crossed over to this side at Bellevue and struck a bee-line for Ottumwa, where the southern tier of counties all this was perfectly known on the part of the Omaha officials, and done without the shadow of authority.

Mr. Smith, finding out the game that had been played upon him, started from his city Thursday night, with the intention of intercepting the party in their journey across the state. He came up with them a few miles east of Glenwood, succeeded in obtaining possession of the prisoner, and returned with him yesterday. The Ottumwas made nothing out of this attempt at sharp practice, but Mr. Smith has had his prisoner on this side of the river, and has a warrant for his arrest. The party engaged in this rascally affair have learned a lesson that will be beneficial to them in future transactions with their fellow men.

The prisoner had a hearing yesterday before the county judge and was held to bail in the penal sum of $1,000 to answer the charge of grand larceny. In default of bail he was committed to jail to await his trial at the August term of the district court. —Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonpareil.

SECESSION GOING TO BALTIMORE.—The Mason (Ga.) Telegraph has the following dispatch, dated Augusta, May 8th: "Mr. Tombs telegraphs to us to say to you that the southern members have agreed on a recommendation to the seceding states all to go to Baltimore for reunion. No new state conventions."

FROM PIER'S PEAK.—ASTONISHING DISCOVERY OF GOLD.—A Mr. Alexander, of Mountain City, returned to that place on Sunday last, from the Arkansas mines about Kelley's Bar, and brings a report of new gold discoveries that has well nigh turned everybody's head. It is in a gulch a few miles above Kelley's Bar, near the river. The gulch is several miles long, and has a lasting stream of water running through it. In digging the prospectors passed through about four feet of vegetable mold, and two or three feet of gravel, when they struck the pay-dirt—a close red clay, intermixed with gravel. On its surface twenty-five cents to the pan was obtained, and the yield gradually increased till the red soil was reached at the depth of ten feet, where over one dollar a pan was found. From twenty-five cents to a dollar to the pan in gulch diggings, with six feet of pay dirt will give an astonishing yield of gold if the diggings are of any considerable extent.

Many persons are setting out for the new diggings, but we advise moderation and delay until the reports are more fully confirmed. Do not stampede.—Rocky Mountain News, May 8.
